Useful Quotes

“All is danger in this kind of experimentation, for the reason that it is not anything inert that is acted upon, but that there is a modification, more or less injurious, of the microzymas of the inoculated.”

—Les Microzymas. By Antoine Béchamp, page 902. As quoted in Béchamp or Pasteur?: A Lost Chapter in the History of Biology. By Ethel D. Hume on page 338 [prefaced by Pasteur: Plagiarist, Imposter: The Germ Theory Exploded. By R. B. Pearson], ISBN# 978-1-46790-012-6, 2011

“The dangers of Pasteurism have never been revealed to the public in the light of Béchamp’s doctrine that the microzyma is at the beginning of all organisation, and that every organism may be reduced to the microzyma.

“If Béchamp is correct, the corporate life of a biological entity such as a human or an animal is composed of a united multiplicity of infinitesimal cytological and histological elements, each possessed of its own independent being. According to Béchamp, it is because every organism is reducible to the microzyma that life exists in the embryo before it develops organs. It is because there are in the microzyma permanent principles of reaction that we have at last realised some idea of life. It is because the microzymas are endowed with an individual independent life that there are in the different centres of the body differing microzymas, with varying functions.

“This biological teaching explains the potency of the minutely small doses used in homeopathy; it explains the changes that must be involved in what Herbert Spencer called ‘invading agents,’ a danger he immediately sensed, quite apart from such teaching as that provided by Béchamp, in whose Les Microzymas we find the following passage:

“ “The most serious, even fatal, disorders may be provoked by the injection of living organisms into the blood; organisms which, existing in the organs proper to them, fulfil necessary and beneficial functions — chemical and physiological — but injected into the blood, into a medium not intended for them, provoke redoubtable manifestations of the gravest morbid phenomena.

“ “Microzymas, morphologically identical, may differ functionally, and those proper to one species or to one centre of activity cannot be introduced into an animal of another species, nor even into another centre of activity in the same animal, without serious danger.” ” 1

“How much more dangerous is it, then, when the microzymas, artificially inoculated, are not only of a foreign species, but are in a morbid condition, even in the species from which they are taken?

“Béchamp follows the passage quoted above with a description, based on experiments, of the microzymian capacity for changing function.”

“The Danger of Inoculating”

“Formerly, notwithstanding the generally ignorant use of drugs by the medical profession, the efforts of the physician, mistaken though they generally were, were really directed exclusively to heal the sick. From the time of Pasteur’s predecessor in quackery —Ed. Jenner—and during the growth of Pasteur’s superstition right down to this day, the efforts of the large majority of the profession and of all the official doctors, except those officially employed in promoting sanitation, have been and are engaged in efforts to make sick the well. By poisonous sera of all sorts they pretend to seek to protect the well against diseased conditions which would scarcely ever happen to them were their vitality not reduced by poison poured into their blood, whereby their vitality is lowered and their constitutions often permanently debased. Let me call attention to the folly of all these inoculations.”

“When a drug is administered by the mouth, as was beautifully pointed out by Dr. J. J. Garth Wilkinson, in proceeding along the alimentary canal, it encounters along its whole line a series of chemical laboratories, wherein it is analysed, synthesized, and deleterious matter prepared for excretion, and finally excreted, or it may be ejected from the stomach, or overcome by an antidote. But when Nature’s coat of mail, the skin, is violated, and the drug inserted beneath the skin, Nature's line of defence is taken in the rear and rarely can anything be done to hinder or prevent the action of the drug, no matter how injurious, even fatal, it may be. All the physicians of the world are incompetent either to foresee its action or to hinder it. Even pure water has been known to act as a violent and foudroyant poison when injected into the blood stream. How much more dangerous is it, then, to inject poisons known to be such, whether modified in the fanciful manner at present fashionable among Vivisectionists, or in any other manner. These simple considerations show that inoculation should be regarded as malpractice, to be tolerated only in case of extreme danger where the educated physician sees no other chance of saving life."

—Dr. Montague R. Levenson, Pasteur the Plagiarist: The Debt of Science to Béchamp. By Dr. Montague R. Levenson, 1911. Delivered at Claridges Hotel, London, England on May 25, 1911, Pages 11-13 [<https://babel.hathitrust.org/cgi/pt?id=mdp.39015081399316&view=1up&seq=1>]
